

Eva Nist
Clay Middle School
Seventh Grade

Veterans Day marks a day in history
To celebrate the people who helped build our country
Who put their lives on the line
They did it ever so humbly.

But there were more people there
Than soldiers with guns
They were so very noble, of course
But they're not the only ones.

There were the nurses
In their new uniforms
Saving lives
Crammed into dorms.

The civilians were there
Who still went outside
Putting on a brave face
Even though they're scared inside

The young boys were there
In their late teens
Hardly adults
Using deadly machines.

Veterans Day is a day
To celebrate those who served
Each of them is noble
Because of them our country is preserved.

So here's a thank you
To the soldiers, the nurses,
The boys and the wounded,
And the people who lived in the towns.

For without you,
Where would we be?
We wouldn't be the same today
Your bravery was the key.